The Science Based

Targets initiative (SBTi) is a corporate climate action organization that enables companies and financial institutions worldwide to play their part in combating the climate crisis.

Its

trading subsidiary, SBTi Services Ltd, checks and validates the science-based targets of corporates, financial institutions, and small and medium enterprises (SMEs) across the globe.

The

SBTi - including its subsidiary - aims to provide the best available advice in response to technical queries, but accepts no liability for the veracity of this advice. Please note that this can lead to situations where decisions following more in-depth deliberation during the target validation process may contradict earlier advice provided outside of the target validation process. Businesses are therefore encouraged to engage with the formal target validation service as soon as possible.
